Your sources of inspiration at work ?

- * The zeal and enthusiasm of the students, co-operation of teachers & guidance of madam Amrutha Latha.

'Experience teaches several lessons' - the best lesson so far you learnt ?

- * To err is human. To have patience is divine.

What do you do for the all round development of the students ?

- * We provide common platform to exhibit the talents of the children.

How do you mould your child to become a good citizen ?

- * I inculcate the habit of reading among the students and I also ask them not to watch the pap on T.V that results in negative impact on them.

What's the need to categorise students in to A1, A2 and A3 - won't it effect their confidence ?

- * In fact, competition among equals develops the confidence and at the same time the competition among unequals leads to inferiority complex.

If both of them are mixed together, the gifted children may either get bored or distracted to mischievous deeds as they grasp every thing within no time and disturb the slow learners who need more time to grasp.

So classifying the students into A1, A2 & A3 according to merit is the best solution for an effective 'teaching and learning' process.

Slow learners - what are the remedial measures you suggest ?

- * We take special care after identifying the slow learners by appointing subject teachers who know the different levels of students' IQ.

Your message to the students ?

- * Creativity has no limits. Create a wonderful world by your inventions.

Your appeal to the parents ?

- * Your children are in our safe hands. Have confidence in us.
